Report University Board Agreed Branch to Stay In L. A. City Limits

Rumors to the effect that the regents of the University of California have agreed unofficially to select a site within the incorporate city limits of Los Angeles for the new southern branch of the university today gave added impetus to predictions that Burbank will secure the coveted prize.

It was pointed out that if such action has been taken by the regents, all proposed sites excepting the ones at Burbank and Westwood are automatically eliminated.

Showers General and Will Continue: North Hard Hit by Floods

Predictions of rainfall in the Southland came true early this morning, when a light rain began falling, adding .09 of an inch to the seasonal record. The seasonal record to date was raised to 3.80 inches, as compared with 2.48 inches a year ago today. These figures were furnished The Glendale Evening News by H. E. Bartlett of 333 West Broadway.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 12 .-Rain began falling over Southern California at 4 o'clock this morning, following the coast line south from San Francisco bay district, where a torrential downpour was reported yesterday, with the flooding of cities and demoralization of both rail and river traffic.

AIMS BOOST

Glendale Aviation Meet Next Month In Interest of Civic Progress

Glendale's aviation carnival or March 14 and 15 has been planned to boost the city of Glendale and the Chamber of Commerce, not the airport, Dr. T. C. Young said in opening his aviation talk at the weekly luncheon of the Greater Glendale Luncheon club toer Glendale Luncheon club to-day at the Masonic temple. The carnival, which is ex-pected to draw 25,000 per-sons and in which more than 300 airplanes are expected to participate, will be the contribution of the airport officials to civic progress and publicity, Dr. Young explained. The object of the great air meet is to sell commercial aviation to the general public through chambers of commerce of the Southland, staging a program of practical demonstrations of the utility of air transportation

"We hope to teach the practicability of commercial flying by educating the lay public, using chambers of commerce as the clearing house for advice and information. Incidentally, it opens to Glendale one of the most spectacular advertising mediums pos sible and places the Glendale Chamber of Commerce in the lead among similiar bodies of Southern California in aeronautical development," Dr. Young said.

Practical Flying

According to Comrade Peirce, this cabin is perfect to the last detail and gives a correct impression of how the great president, whose birthday the nation observes today, lived as a child and grew to manhood. Civic Leaders Invited To Discuss Problem With State Body

Publishers of the principal newspapers, officials of the leading civic organizations, members of the boards of supervisors, state senators and assemblymen and many representative citizens of the thirteen counties comprising Southern California are receiving invitations to meet with the directors, advisory board members and officers of the Automobile Club of Southern California at a dinner to be held at 6 o'clock, Thursday night, February 19, at the club headquarters in Los Angeles.

"A frank discussion of the highway problem of this state will do much to clarify the situation," said President W. L. Valentine. Washington Officials Honor Civil War President's Glorious Career

By H. K. REYNOLDS
For International News Service,
WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Although there was no official holiday and the government, including Congress, functioned as usual, Washington found time today to observe Lincoln's birthday anniversary.

The capital's recollection of Lincoln centers about his occupancy of the White House in the days before and during the Civil war, for it was here that he rose to his greatness and accomplished the tasks which gave him his place in history.

In a silent, old house in Georgetown, Robert Todd Lincoln, only living son of the president, ob-served his father's birthday quietly and alone, declining all invitations to public functions and formal anniversary ceremonies. His 82 years bear heavily upon Ceremonies were held at the Willard hotel, where the tall, gaunt ex-congressman from Illinois stopped before he took the oath of the presidency for the first time; and at the Lincoln memorial in Potomac park, where the great Lincoln statue looks out calmly and gravely to the shining dome of the capitol, a mile and a half away.

Addresses in eulogy of Lincoln were delivered by Secretary of War Weeks, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior Work, former Governor Lowden of Illinois, Judge Elbert H. Gary, John Kirby and John Wesley Hill of New York. The speeches were broadcast through radio station

During the day there was a steady stream of visitors at the little brick house in Tenth street, where Lincoln died after he was wounded in Ford's theatre, just across the street. The house is now a museum, containing objects associated with Lincoln's life in Washington. The theatre had lately been used as an army recruiting station, but is now

One of the attractive fea-tures of The Glendale Eve-ning News is the building page, which appears each Saturday. Last Saturday there were two building pages, setting forth the advantage of owning a home and property in Glendale, the material to use, and other valuable data to persons planning on building a home here. There will be at least two building pages in The Glendale Evening News for next Saturday. Firms desiring space on these building pages are urged to get in touch with the display advertising department of The Glendale Evening News at once.

OUR TRADING FACILITIES

The man who establishes a business in a community shows his faith in it and adds to the city's wealth and prosperity to the amount of his investment plus his faith. Assuming that this man is one of some business intelligence and that there is a need in the community for his enterprise, he should have the support of the citizens.

People do not choose to live in a community where they cannot purchase all of the necessities and most of the luxuries of living. That is one of the first things considered when moving or establishing a home. That people will be attracted to a community where the stores are of the best has been demonrated time and again; everyone knows from his own experince that this is true. No matter what things may be considered later, the opportunities afforded by the stores is a decid-

It stands to reason then that the people of the city are indebted to the man who has established himself in business, invested his money and his faith in the city. His store is an attraction to outsiders just so far as the people of the community help him to make it so. If he lacks patronage he cannot keep his business up to the high standard that people expect to find in a city where other conditions are ideal. If the home people give him their trade he can keep improving his store, adding to his stocks, increasing his service and expanding in every way. He can grow with the community and at the same time be the incentive for the growth of the com-

We have tried many times to show that the relationship between the merchant and the citizen must be one of good-will and co-operation in a growing, prosperous community, for they are interdependent. One cannot flourish without the other.

Glendale stores are the kind that attract people to the community. Their facilities are of the type that might be expected in a city like Glendale. Continue to give your trade to the home merchant and help him to maintain an establishment that will attract more and more people to Glendale and so benefit us all.

HIGH SPEED HIGHWAYS

The Glendale Evening News has often claimed that the only solution of the traffic problem on the highways is to build roads sufficiently wide to accommodate two lines of traffic, Those who wish to drive slowly would keep to the curb on either side and those who would exceed a given speed would have the center of the road.

Precisely this idea is embodied in the plan of the California State Automobile association. The plan is to obtain a straight or nearly straight right of way between cities. The road would be built 100 feet wide. The outside 20 feet on each side would be occupied by a local paved highway, each one to carry one line of local traffic. The central 30 feet would be filled by the high-speed, trunk-line motorway with two lines of traffic, each way. The 15 feet on each side of this central road would be occupied with sidings through which connection is main, tained between the local and the high-speed motorways.

Speeds on the central road would be practically unlimited, although the plan is to keep this down to 50 miles an hour, with a minimum speed limit of 30 to 35 miles. The object is to keep through traffic moving rapidly in this central roadway and eliminate local traffic altogether.

The plan of the association calls for the elimination of curves, steep grades and crossroads and for unusually heavy paving. Fences would be built along the roads six to ten feet high.

Rapid strides are being taken in the efficiency and use of motor cars and transcontinental and state-wide travel are growing so common that high-speed highways are the only solution of the traffic problem.

ILLUSTRIOUS NAMES

We are told that there is nothing new under the sun, but three cases that are now on the dockets in eastern courts would seem to be something new. Foreigners coming to this country with long and unpronounceable names find them a aspect dominate this day, accordhandicap and naturally wish to change them. Well and good, ing to astrology. ENCOURAGE MOTOR TOURISTS

An observer makes the suggestion that the best antidote for justments eastern propaganda against California is to make short motor trips to California popular by means of splendid transcontinental highways. If these through highways were in proper condition a six-weeks' vacation tour from the middle west or east would be attractive, for many people would take that much time from their work who would not consider a longer vacation. At the present time ten days is considered good going from Chicago to California, and in a six weeks' vacation that means too much time on the road. Of course it is useless for California to worry about what other states are doing in the way of highway construction and improvement, but Arizona and New Mexico will be forced to provide good roads very soon, otherwise Utah and Nevada will cash in with the Arrowhead training may be of much signifitrail, the southern branch of the Lincoln highway in which cance in world affairs before the many states are interested. But if, at the California state line, sied. tourists found ideal highway conditions much would be accomplished.

Lincoln As Seen By Camera

These daguerreotypes and photographs of ABRAHAM LINCOLN were taken at various stages of his career. Photography was in its infancy then, but the great strength of Lincoln's character is shown by all of the photos, despite the crudeness of some of them.

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Dou you ever realize that the reason so many people love Abraham Lincoln is that he was a common or ordinary man?

Most people who acquire distinction do so because they possess some quality or talent that makes them exclusive. Such, for instance, was the case of Chopin, of Gladstone, of Mendelssohn, and of many others who were contemporary with master. Lincoln. But Lincoln is remarkable in that he possessed no exclusive characteristics.

He was not good looking. He was a homely man. And most of us are homely. He once said that "God must love common people, or common looking people, because he made so many of It is no disgrace to be good looking, and perhaps one may be pardoned for taking a reasonable pride in his pulchritude. But, just the same, with most of us good looks are conspicuous by their absence. Lincoln belonged to the great majority in this respect, as he was not a good

He was not learned. He was not a Greek scholar, as was Gladstone, nor was he a great musician, nor a great artist. He was great, but his greatness consisted in the qualities which all

In him were exalted all the kind and gentle impulses which we all have. When we say he was noted for his kindness, we but state that he was noted for his human qualities. So it was with his common sense. It was the kind that is the balance of all human faculties. In fact, he kept close to the commons. He had that ability to look past his immediate advisers, in the common people. He knew them, and loved them. It was not for nothing that he had gained his education by difficult processes. He had lain by the fire and studied his lessons in the most difficult manner.

He was not a man of great ideas, but he was a man who had the great ideas of the common people. He recognized that he was the servant of the common people, and not their leader or their

He was universally loved, because he loved universally. He loved men, and they loved him in return. It was truly said of him that his heart was as great as the world.

There has been much question as to whether was a Christian or not. Many preachers have held him up as an example of Christianity. On the contrary, others have tried to rove that he was a free thinker. Whatever was his religion, it was the common divisor of all creeds. He fully carried out the precepts of Jesus, at least His principles. There never was a man who more emplified the fundamental basis of all religions He loved his fellow men, and tried to do them

He had a sense of play. Probably no time was more terrible than his time, no time was more filled with the passions of men. But through all this, he kept his sense of play, and was enabled to see the funny side of things. This sense of play is a most human characteristic. It helps one to bear his burdens, and to see things in their proper perspective.

It was the common criticism of Mr. Lincoln that came at last to his advantage. He was criticized for being ugly, and awkward, and home-But it was these qualities that endeared him to the great mass of the common people, and to to the common people. A great many of us are ugly, and awkward, and homely, and we are sense what those people wanted. He had faith brought near to him.

Walt Whitman's Classic Is Tribute To Abraham Lincoln

One of the grandest of all the poems of Walt Whitman, America's great poet, is his "O Captain! My Captain!" a tribite to Lincoln:

O Captain! my Captain! our fearful trip is done, The ship has weathered every rock, the prize we sought is won, The port is near, the bells I hear, the people all exulting, While follow eyes the steady keel, the vessel grim and daring;

But O heart! heart! heart! O the bleeding drops of red,

Where on the deck my Captain lies, Fallen cold and dead. O Captain! my Captain! rise up and hear the bells; Rise up-for you the flag is flung-for you the bugle thrills, For you bouquets and ribboned wreaths-for you the shores acrowding. For you they call, the swaying mass, their eager faces turning; Here, Captain! dear father! This arm beneath your head!

It is some dream that on the deck You've fallen cold and dead. My Captain does not answer, his lips are pale and still, My father does not feel my arm, he has no pulse nor will, The ship is anchored safe and sound, its voyage closed and done, From fearful trip the victor ship comes in with object won;

Exult, O shores, and ring, O bells! But I, with mournful tread, Walk the deck my Captain lies, Fallen cold and dead.

Envy is natural to man; and still, it is at once a vice and a ource of misery.

Envy shows how unhappy people are: and in their constant attention to what others do and leave undone, how much they are bored.

We should treat it as the enemy of our happiness, and stifle it like an evil thought.

This is the advice given by Seneca; as he well puts it, we shall be pleased with what we have, if we avoid the self-torture of comparing our own lot with some other and happier one.

And again: If a great many people appear to be better off than yourself, think how many

So much for the envy we may feel toward others. As regards envy we may excite in them, we should always remember Schopenhauer's observation that no form hatred that comes from envy; and therefore we should always carefully refrain from doing anything to rouse it.

It is customary to say that aristocrats are of three kinds: of birth and rank; of wealth; and of intellect. The last is, of course, the most distinguished of the three. Every one of these aristocracies is surrounded by a host of envious persons. If you belong to one of them, they will be embittered against you; and unless they are restrained by fear, they will always be anxious to let you know that you are no better than they. It is by their anxiety to let you know this, that they betray how greatly they are conscious that the opposite is the

Glendale Motor Car Dealers' Exhibit to Continue For Eight Days

The first annual Automobile show of the Glendale Motor Car Dealers' association, opening March 7, will aim to encourage more intelligent buying of autoobiles and accessories, Lyman Clark, president of the association, said today. The show will continue eight days, closing Sat-urday, March 14. The location has not yet been selected but it will be centrally located.

"In staging this show, our one thought is to give the public a chance to compare the relative advantages of the various makes and models of cars so that the car selected may be the one best suited to the needs of each buyer," says Mr. Clark. "Some people are prone to go elsewhere and buy merchandise, instead of patronizing leads merchants. ronizing local merchants.

State Rules On Headlight Driving Law

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 12. —Driving an automobile in California without headlights does not necessar-ily constitute reckless driving, according to a ruling today by Attorney General U. S. Webb.

This ruling was handed to Will H. Marsh, superintendent of the state motor vehicle department, who sought to learn whether violators of the state headlight law provisions can be charged with reckless driving.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

EDITORIAL

The story of Lincoln is old. Nearly sixty years have passed since the great emancipator walked the earth. The days of slavery and secession seem very far away, so rapid is our living and so great have been the changes since that time. Other great men have appeared upon the stage of life before us, played their parts and made their exit. Yet Lincoln holds his place in our hearts. Never a year passes but something is added to our knowledge of him, information that we eagerly devour. Our interest in the Greatest American grows rather than declines as the years remove him farther from our time.

One of the most splendid tributes to Lincoln ever written appears in the current number of Pictorial Review under the title, "The Beauty of Lincoln," by Albert Edward Wiggam. This article is so unusual as to be startling, for

In one of John Ruskin's lectures, "Art and Morals," he told his class that to see all an artist puts into a great picture we must be as good and as wise as the artist himself. Ruskin, of course, expressed this thought much more clearly and elegantly than we have stated it here. However, may it not be possible that any ugliness we may have seen in Lincoln was in our own ignorance rather than in lack of symmetry in his form or features?

it proves beyond a doubt that we have been at fault in thinking Abraham Lincoln homely and awkward.

Mr. Wiggam proves that, from the standpoint of biology and of art, Lincoln was one of the most beautiful men that ever lived. Great sculptors of this country and of Europe have made exhaustive studies of the Lincoln mask, made during his life, and their conclusion has invariably been, "What a beautiful face!" The physician who examined Lincoln after he was assassinated has said, "The sight that met my gaze was the most extraordinary impression of physical perfection I have ever seen. There was not a blemish, not an ounce of superfluous flesh, not a disproportion. . . . I doubt if any human being was ever more absolute. An awkward movement in such a perfect machine would be literally impossible."

In this article Lincoln's features are analyzed from the standpoint of the artist, and in them the writer finds the greatness of the man. Some types of beauty are commonplace. Lincoln's beauty stands alone, of the noblest and highest type ever attained in human evolution. The Greek type of beauty personified sunshine and laughter and spring. "But when we look upon the face of Lincoln we find ourselves thinking of lonely mountain fastnesses, of lofty snow-clad peaks, and the grandeur of the ocean storm." Mr. Wiggam says Lincoln was democracy personified. No other country could have produced him. There was not enough room in Europe. He was the natural product of evolution. In order to produce his physique and his type of intellect evolution had to have more elbow room. Emerson expressed a similar thought when he said of Lincoln, "He is the true history of the American people in his time," and a certain poet sang-

"He was the North, the South, the East, the West, The thrall, the master, all of us in one.'

All this being true, it follows that to study and to teach the life of Lincoln in all its beauty and simplicity is to promote that spirit of Americanism which we so much desire. Young people who prefer their biography in fiction form should read, "A man for the ages," in which we are given an intimate picture in an interesting way of Lincoln's early life and struggles, and the death of his beloved, Anne Rutledge, whose name will be forever immortal because of Lincoln's love for her.

Expressions of Lincoln's greatness and simplicity have been preserved for us in the things he said and wrote. The emancipation proclamation, the speech at Gettysburg and other utterances and writings are among our most cherished literary gems. As Harrison D. Mason wrote in his beautiful poem, "Abraham Lincoln at Gettysburg":

> Not often in a nation's story, Such words supreme, such manhood fine; He gave that day our grief and glory The dignity of things divine.

No impulse, no actor speaking Of thoughts which came by happy chance; The man, the place were God's own seeking; The words are our inheritance.

Again—Do Not Expect Long Trading Allowances on Any Used Car When You Come to Buy a Chrysler

This statement of eight months ago is repeated in justice to Chrysler distributors and dealers, who cannot in fairness be expected to penalize themselves by making long allowances, merely because the Chrysler may have depreciated the value of

A car may be a very good car indeed and still it will lack the riding, driving, braking, accelerating, power and speed qualities which thrill the owner of a Chrysler Six. As we said in June of last year, those qualities are so valuable and mean so much in efficiency and economy that you could well afford to discard the used car without compensation for the sake of the amazing activity of performance and the saving the Chrysler will bring you.

Even if another car originally cost you twice as much, the burden you escape when you acquire a Chrysler-the substitution of more agile and satisfying performance and the stoppage of waste-will more than compensate you.

Months ago we said that because of these unusual Chrysler qualities, the Chrysler was invading all markets and especially those of much higher price.

We also said that the enthusiasm of the public over the Chrysler was certain to affect all motor cars and ultimately all motor car design.

The change in (internal) design has not yet come. Until it does, there is no possibility for anyone who wants Chrysler results to make a comparison between the Chrysler and other cars, whether they be used or new.

It is all a question of whether you want the qualities which the Chrysler alone

If you do, then it is perfectly clear that you cannot compare the value of another used car or ANY OTHER NEW CAR with the value of the Chrysler.

Neither higher prices nor lower prices nor long allowances have anything to do with the fact that there is still only one Chrysler and that it delivers results which no other car delivers.

This is no reflection on any good car. It is simply a statement of facts which every Chrysler owner knows.

This Essex-6-Coach

NoneCanCopy Its Chief Value

The Chassis is Patented

Essex is a totally different type. It gives results no other car ever gave.

> Low price, without disappointment in looks or reliability.

Economy without sacrifice of performance.

Stability and highest roadability without unnecessary weight.

The riding ease of large, costly cars. The handling ease of a bicycle. Utter simplicity in design.

The lowest maintenance cost, we believe, of any car in the world.

Two of every three Essex buyers come to it from those who formerly owned cars bought chiefly for their low first price.

Just as the Coach body and Coach name have been extensively copied, even by costliest cars, so must future mechanical design seek to approximate the results Essex gives.

But the patents which make the Super-Six the most enduring, smoothest motor and give it all advantages, also prevent any from copying its chassis.

Surely you cannot be satisfied with less than Essex offers. Its cost is but little more than cars of the lowest price.

L. M .- The mixture of peroxide and ammonia for bleaching superfluous hair may be used on any part of body as well as on the face. The only precaution necessary is not to use it so frequently that it will make the skin sensitive. After you have bleached the hair, I should think one application a week would be all that is needed to keep the color from Grapefruit returning.

Dancer .- You cannot stop the tendency to perspiration as it is a natural and normal condition. Before going to dance, use a powder that is slightly astringent; if this does not control the condi-tion over the entire evening, you can help it by using a little cold water followed by more powder

You can have an astringent added to your bath powder at any drug store but do not use it ex-cept when absolutely needed as it will make the skin very dry if used in excess.

Milkmen Are Tied With M.E. Church; First Half of Season to End

The Calla Lily crew stepped into first division of the City league last night when they defeated the Standard Oils, 39 to 13, in a snappy basketball game played at Harvard High school gym. The first quarter was marked by poor shooting, while the milkmen ran up their big-gest total in the second quarter. Talbert, center for the milk men, was the outstanding star of the game, although Bob Avery, left guard on the same team, pushed him close for honors Talbert played the first three quarters and accounted for fif-teen points while Avery excelled in point-making and keeping the Oilers from shooting. The only scoring done in the opening quarter was a basket by Isenhouer, center for the Oilers, and a free shot sunk by Talbert. Last night's victory gives the milkmen a tie for third place with the M. E. churchmen, while the Oilers drop to a percentage of 250. The lineups:

Radium Ore Revigator Co.:

I have been using the water from a Radium Ore Lined Jar for three months, and pleased to state for the benefit of any sufferers, that I have gained eight pounds in weight, I sleep very much better, and enjoy my food much better and eat anything I wish. I believe the time will come when every home in the world will have one of these Radium Ore Lined Jars.

These statements are made that they may possibly influence some one in poor health to avail themselves of this opportunity of having soft, radiumized water.

Yours truly, J. G. MORAVEC, Palms, Calif.

Radium water has long been known to have remarkable curative and health values.

It is the radio-activity in the water at Hot Springs, Arkansas, which is responsible for the almost miraculous results obtained there.

But radio-activity can not be retained in stored water. And you drink stored water.

A New Way

You can, however, enjoy the health values of radium water in your home, because of the development of the Radium Ore Revigator.

It is a radium jar which returns to the water the radio-activity, without in any way changing the taste of the water.

Radium water truly cleanses the organs eliminating the poisons which too often remain to lower vitality and resistance to disease.
